

THE CROW TAKES FLIGHT: THE ANNUAL LAUNCH OF THE MIS NEWSPAPER

by Jose Zachari Sibal, Karlsten Lagniton, Alfonso Perez, & Hannah Macabeo

Montessori Integrated School of Antipolo has always emphasized the creative expression and development of its students. Students have always been encouraged to participate in various activities to further develop their hobbies, interests, and skills, especially now that we're back to on-site learning. The CROW is a newspaper that's run by a select group of students from MIS, produced every year. Our team consists of young, talented, creative, and enthusiastic writers, photographers, and illustrators — these students have come together to combine their talents to present you with an entertaining and informative newspaper, providing you with the latest news.

The school newspaper known as "The Crow" has been a valued part of our educational institution for years, however, it is only recently that its publication has truly taken flight — soaring to new heights, and becoming an integrated part of our school community.

In addition to fostering creative expression, The CROW also serves as a platform for students to showcase their journalistic and artistic talents. Covering a diverse range of topics — from school events, to global issues — the newspaper strives to capture the pulse of the Montessori Integrated School community. With a commitment to excellence, the dedicated team of writers search into reporting to bring you in-depth stories that go beyond the surface. The newspaper's growth symbolizes the dynamic spirit of our student body, embodying the school's values of curiosity, innovation, and collaboration. Stay tuned as The CROW continues to spread its wings, delivering compelling content that resonates with our school community.
